

DEGUELLO

WARNING:
This product can expose you to chemicals including Butyl, Nickel, Chromium, Vanadium and Lead, which are known to the State of California to cause cancer and Butyl, Nickel, Chromium, Lead and Iodine, which are known to the State of California to cause birth defects or other reproductive harm. For more information go to www.P65Warnings.ca.gov.

DEGUELLO

From the land of the Maya comes Expat Knives' latest release: El Deguello. Mysteriously named after either a ZZ Top album, a Spanish battle cry, or the primitive use of the blade on livestock (experts disagree). El Salvador is sort of a second home for the Randall's Adventure and Training crowd, and it turns out they know a thing or two about machetes down there. A weight forward design, with plenty of belly in the 18" blade, combined with a smooth, ergonomic micarta handle, means you've got a dependable tool to get you through the toughest bush and back home again. A brass-lined lanyard hole comes in particularly useful in a rain-soaked jungle, or while on zombie patrol. Use it for barter and watch the most stoic of border guards smile and wave your Land Cruiser through. The world is a wild place. Don't be under equipped. Gear up with El Deguello today.

Overall Length: 18.75"
Blade Length: 12.75"
Blade Thickness: .094"
1075 Carbon Steel
Black Oxide Finish
Micarta Handles
Canvas Sheath
Made In El Salvador

Item #: DEGUELLO
(Machete & Sheath)

